

This site collects information on you in two ways:

1. The information that you manually provide by signing up for my newsletter. This information can be tied directly to you because of the information you've provided.
2. The information that's automatically collected via our third-party partners: Wix (my website host), Constant Contact, Google Analytics & Fine Art America. The types of information collected here include things like Analytics of how my website is being visited, such as pages visited on my website. Generally, our third-party partners only give me this information in the aggregate (e.g. it's not identifiable to you) but sometimes this information can be directly tied to you such as when you make a purchase of prints through Fine Art America on the 'Shop' page.

Your information may be shared with Constant Contact, my email provider in order to send you the information requested, such as a newsletter. Aggregate information is collected in order to understand and provide the content that my readers find most interesting and to understand the types of art that resonates most with my followers.

The information collected is only shared with my trusted third-party partners when you subscribe to my list or when you make a purchase, so that your request may be completed.

If you would like to know what information I have that's directly attributable to you, you may contact me here – susan@susanklinger.com